How to create a positive atmosphere in 5 simple ways

Creating a positive atmosphere is a leadership quality that anyone can develop. No matter how negative the people are at your workplace, you still have control over the most important thing – your own attitude.

The following are 5 things you can start doing today to create a positive attitude in your workplace

1. Greet everyone today with an enthusiastic “Hello” with a smile and good eye contact.
2. End every phone call and email with “Have a great day.” Your positive energy will come across, and both of you will feel energized.
3. Give everyone a compliment. It’s easiest to say something nice about what they are wearing or think of a personality quality to compliment on.
4. Bake some chocolate chip cookies and pass them out. Homemade cookies say “I cared enough to take the time to make them.”
5. Good news energizes. Write some good news about something at work or at home and post it for all to see, or give it to your supervisor.
